Office Signs will help anyone communicate quickly and clearly with the working stiff in the cubicle next door, the friend across the conference room table, or any coworker within sight without making a sound. Practice makes perfect. Readers can rehearse a little in advance to make sure that they're saying what they think they're saying, and then take their hand signals out of their cubicles and into a conference room and have fun! * Learn to make a point elegantly, quietly, and economically. * Develop the ability to chat silently with friends and coworkers in the office or across a meeting room. * Learn to say smart-alecky things about your boss without risk of being fired!
