Action Report' should be required reading for any Marine contemplating a career move to a civilian job. It sure wouldn't hurt anyone else either. While part of the book is Marine specific, the main 'lessons learned' after each chapter are universal. Civilians and military members alike can benefit greatly from his insights and experiences. You'd think a book by a combat seasoned career officer writing about what would normally be dry material would be stiff and to the point, but Mike Grice's self deprecating humor and liberal doses of wit and wisdom make the book a quick and meaningful read. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. A strip map for the road to civilian life By Thomas R Reilly "Orders to Nowhere" was a well written and accessible guide. Michael Grice does a good job of highlighting the major milestones of transitioning from the military and offers hard won insight on how to navigate the path to civilian life. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. A Good and Informative Read By Rudy Janiczek Mike does a great job of walking the reader step by step through his personal transition experience in a down-to-earth and sincere way. Loaded with helpful tips and practical information, this book presents itself as a great source for those considering the challenges of transitioning from the military.

Orders to Nowhere is the essential insider's guide to military transition. Demystifying the uncertainty and ambiguity that surrounds getting out of the military, Orders to Nowhere is the comprehensive After Action Report of a career Marine's transition from the tightly knit military world back to civilianhood. Tens of thousands of Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen, Marines, and Coast Guardsmen transition back into the civilian world each and every year.

"This is THE book for any person in the military who is planning to transition or retire. There are great personal vignettes and lessons from cover to cover. This book makes more sense of the very complicated transition process than anything I have seen." -Chuck Heiser, former Marine and professional career consultant
