From Brand: Palgrave Macmillan : The Global Competitiveness Report 2004-2005 before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Global Competitiveness Report 2004-2005:

The World Economic Forum continues its tradition of excellence with the 25th edition of the annual Global Competitiveness Report featuring the latest national statistics and results of the Executive Opinion Survey, which captures the perception of over 8,700 business leaders. The report provides the most comprehensive assessment of 104 developed and emerging economies. Produced in collaboration with a distinguished group of international scholars and a global network of over 100 leading national research institutes and business organizations, the report presents individual detailed country profiles highlighting the competitive strengths and weaknesses of each economy as well as an extensive section of data tables containing country rankings for over 160 indicators. The report also showcases the latest thinking and research on issues of immediate relevance for business leaders and policy-makers. The report provides a unique benchmarking tool for: Governments in identifying obstacles to economic growth and assisting in the design of better economic policies Businesses in developing business strategies and guiding investment decisions Academia in analysing an economy's current business environment and comparing against other economies Civil society organizations in learning more about how their country's competitiveness condition fares against others

"By providing detailed information on the economic conditions of nations worldwide, The Global Competitiveness Report is a contribution to enhancing our understanding of the key ingredients of economic growth and prosperity." - Klaus Schwab
