William Biddle Atkinson : The Physicians and Surgeons of the United States (Classic Reprint) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Physicians and Surgeons of the United States (Classic Reprint):

Excerpt from The Physicians and Surgeons of the United States That the late Dr. Ephraim mcdowell, of Dan ville, in that State, was justly entitled to the honor of being the father of ovariotomy, until then erroneously ascribed to other surgeons. Shortly after settling in Philadelphia, he founded, in conjunction with Dr. Da Costa, the Philadelphia pathological soc., of which he was the first president and which now embraces a membership of nearly one hundred and fifty. In 1867 he was elected president of the Am. Med. Asso., and in April, 1870, presided at the Teachers' medical convention, held in Washington, to consider the subject of medical education. June, [1870, he was chosen president of the Pennsylvania State med. Soc. In 1872, during his second visit to Europe, the university of Oxford, at its one-thousandth commemoration, conferred on him the honorary degree of D. C. L.; that of LL. D. He had previously received from Jefferson coll., Pa. He was unanimously elected president of the International medical congress which met in Philadelphia in September, [1876. Dr. Gross has always been a warm and decided advocate of professional progress and of a higher standard of medical education. Systematic and economical of time, he has, while punctually fulfilling all engagements as professor and practitioner, been enabled to maintain his early habits of earnest study, to keep thoroughly informed in medical and general literature, and to become a voluminous author. Large portions of his works have been composed while riding about the city in his daily professional routine. He has now been a teacher of surgery for thirty-seven years.
