It covers a lot of topics in a relatively small space (454 pp.), but there's lots of good info here, written in a vastly more engaging style than any of the competing writers' guides (including Jeff Herman's book which is published by the same company.) The best thing about this guide is that Press takes thr writer's side: he does not hesitate to say what he really thinks (right or wrong) about the various agencies, producers, etc., and he refuses to let any agencies, production companies, etc. opt out of the book. Also, he includes detailed lists of personnel at the agencies, production companies, etc. Not perfect far from flawless, but well worth your $18.40. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five Stars By Rick Fry A must have. 2 of 4 people found the following review helpful. It's not as expensive as some others By Darcy Pennell In the back of this book is a database that lists agents and producers. There are comments included with each agent/producer, which I found to be very useful. I would recommend this book for people who can't afford the Hollywood Creative directory. It's definitely a good starting point. You'll find writing advice in the front. I can't really recommend those sections. It's not that they are bad, but there are much better resources for that information. I think the book just tries to do too much. Still, it should be on any writer's bookshelf.

Now You Have a Friend in the Industry! So you want to get into show business? In Hollywood, it's not what you know, but who you know that counts. Whether your dream is to become a Hollywood writer or find the perfect producer to buy your script, at your fingertips are the insider hints and secrets you need to get discovered and succeed in this ultracompetitive industry. Hollywood guru and screenwriter Skip Press introduces you to hundreds of producers, directors, and agents and tells you how to reach them by mail, phone, fax, or e-mail. You'll learn how to: Market screenplays, novels, or short stories to the right people Tailor your proposal to the preferences of each producer, director, or agent Understand the real Hollywood and everything show business Find the best agent or manager "Thoughtfully written, clearly laid out, and of great value to beginners and old-timers alike. This book combines fearless opinions and invaluable hard facts both of which are hard to find in Hollywood." Gareth Wigan, co-vice chairman, Columbia TriStar Motion Picture Group "An entertaining and valuable tool for anyone interested in show business." Paul Mason Sr., vice president of production, Viacom "An invaluable resource for breaking into the movie and television business." Barbara Anne Hiser, Emmy-winning cable and network television producer "An insightful guide to the intricate Hollywood network." Oliver Eberle, founder and CEO, ShowBIZData.com "The bonus for readers of this book is that Skip Press is a good writer accessible, clear, persuasive, motivating, and easy to understand." Jerry B. Jenkins, coauthor, the Left Behind series
